

“THE HARDEST THING YOU CAN POSSIBLY DO IS WALK AWAY FROM SOMEONE THAT YOU VISCERALLY LOVE AND FEEL IS A PART OF YOU.”

Go is Echo Park singer-songwriter Joy Autumn at her most vulnerable. The sparse nature of the song allows room for its listener to breathe into Autumn’s pain, intimately feeling her internal struggle between loving someone so deeply and yet desperately needing to tell them to go.

“In that moment, I realized that I had to pick my own well-being, even though the distorted reality is that I perhaps loved this person even more than I did myself.”

With lush strings and cinematic harmonies, Joy’s raw and breathtaking vocals float from first verse until final second.

The song is a part of Joy Autumn’s upcoming EP, Midnight, an atmospheric indie-pop record about the dark side of making it as an artist in Hollywood.

SOUNDS LIKE - The ambiance of Imogen Heap meets the cinematic drama of Lana Del Rey and the idiosyncrasies of Regina Spektor.

LISTEN TO GO - Private Soundcloud link

LISTEN TO MIDNIGHT - Private Soundcloud link

CONNECT WITH JOY: Website | Instagram | Twitter | Facebook | Contact | EPK